

Having and Have not: Affirm: “I have no mortal feelings, motives, joys, affections, or sorrows. These begin and end. My heart is eternal and as powerful as honesty. It never fades.”

Compassion and hope are heaven-like. Self-justification only robs. It’s a tyrant. God is always right.

Self-justification tries to put down, cut off, and stop the flow of ideas. It’s not a person. Heart immortally feels, loves, acts. Not believing in failure, nor envious, heart is spiritual character and quality.

I am in you and you in me and we are in the Father-Mother, God. Said Jesus, Chapter 14 verse 20 according to St. John.

All form and function of the body symbolize pure ideas; so, the kingdom of heaven is here, harmonious, and full of good. No mortal feelings, motives, acts, or sorrows in heaven.

It’s a blessing.

If you like, see S&H page 587 for the connecting thought.

<http://www.csdirectory.com/index.shtml#plir>